

HIGH SCHOOLS OF STATE NUMBER 31 CADET COMPANIES

With the organization of a cadet company in the Nogales high school, there are now 31 companies in the high schools of the state, a gain of three over last year, according to Capt. Frank Le Rue, inspector instructor for the state. In addition to the three new high school companies a fourth will be organized within a short time, says Captain La Rue, who expects that military training will soon be a feature of the Florence high school.

Captain La Rue will leave tomorrow to make an inspection of the new company at Nogales and before his return will also visit the cadets at Casa Grande, Tucson, Bisbee and Douglas. Four thousand dollars was expended for 22-caliber rifles for high school use in Arizona for delivery in September, said Captain La Rue, but owing to government orders, which took precedence over other orders, the supplies will not be received for another two months. Marksmanship will be emphasized this year and shoots will be prominently featured. While medals and badges have heretofore been the rewards for skill a cup has been added to the trophy list. Target practice will begin on the first of November with national guard ranges open for cadet practice. Any high school having a cadet company and desiring its own range will be furnished the materials if the labor is supplied by the cadets, said Captain La Rue.

In speaking of military training in the schools, Captain La Rue stated that a few complaints had been registered with the military department of the state that the work was physical rather than mental. The captain declared that he did not care to argue the matter but wished to announce in this connection that steps had been taken to secure a wireless outfit for the schools which would be included in the military branch of work.

THREE AGRICULTURE TEACHERS NEEDED

Wanted—Three teachers of agriculture. Carey E. Bowles, supervisor of agriculture with the vocational education department of the state, is in need of instructors.

Mr. Bowles has not been able to meet the demand for teachers although the positions he offers furnish salaries ranging from $2400 to $3000 a year. From the 12 teachers he employed last year the number has jumped to 29 and while he has drawn on other states for instructors he has not yet been able to fill vacancies at Tempe, Young and Peoria.

Among the new schools where agriculture is being taught are those at Snowflake, Eagar and Nutrioso, which will be inspected by Mr. Bowles the coming week. During his absence in the north he will also inspect the classes at St. Johns, which were established a year ago.

PLANNING MILL TO BE BUILT AT MESA

MESA, Sept. 24.—Announcement of the erection of an up-to-date planning mill, which will handle commercial work in the valley as well as the company's own work, was made Friday by the Big Four Construction company of Mesa, of which Clarence M. Padlock is manager.

Ground for the new plant has already been purchased by the company at the corner of Main and Morris streets, and the construction of the building there will be started at once. Machinery has been ordered and purchased so that it will be here ready for installation by the time the building is completed.

First Deer Hunters Off.
Loaded to the guards with all the hunting, fishing and camping equipment necessary to the enjoyment of a perfect outing, a party of seven Mesa men will leave Saturday for the White mountains. En route a day will be passed at Roosevelt fishing and then the party will continue on to the moister wilds where camp will be pitched and preparations made for an active campaign with the opening of deer season the first of the month. In the party are R. B. Neal, P. T. Sizemore, Dr. Taylor, H. P. Neal, E. T. Neal, John Root and H. V. Quinter.

Failure to Support Charged.
Arrested on a complaint sworn to by his wife for failure to support the family, Antonio Jeamollo appeared in the Mesa precinct court Friday morning. He was released on a promise to pay $30 per month towards the support of his family.

C. C. Directors in Session.
A host of matters were presented and acted upon at the weekly business luncheon of the directors of the Mesa commercial club, held Friday. The queen of the cotton carnival, which originated with several members of the commercial club, was given the hearty endorsement of the directors and the entire contest placed in the hands of Dean L. Collett, who is now employed in the club office. Plans for a membership meeting to be held next week were laid, and meetings of the advertising and parade committees were called for Friday afternoon and held. At the advertising committee's session it was decided to handle public fetty in towns outside the county through the press and commercial bodies.

Committee to Visit Tempe Aldermen.
Anxious to see the matter through and the road opened, the commercial club Friday directed the committee of citizens which recently went before the corporation commission on the matter of opening the two blocks of state highway 102 to intersect the view of the aldermen of that town. After the meeting with the commissioners the opinion of the Tempe council relative to the closed road was made. He will now visit that body at an early date if possible to ascertain what steps can be taken to insure the early opening of the highway.

Services at First Ward.
Genealogical day in the Maricopa stake Sunday will be fittingly observed at the Mesa First ward chapel. Sunday school will be held at 10:30 a. m. and the regular meeting service in the evening at 8 o'clock. Don C. Babbitt, G. C. Spillbury and Ephraim Mortenson will speak and several musical selections will be given. Isaac Dana, bishop.

Mex Bootlegger Is Up.

ONE COUNTY MISSING IN PRIMARY RETURNS

With the receipt of official figures from Pinal county yesterday, the secretary of state has received a copy of the count of the primary election from every county in the state with the exception of Apache county. The complete state count will be made immediately on the arrival of the list from the missing county, when the figures will be made public and those in doubt will be declared nominated.

A majority of over 300 is conceded to H. S. Ross for secretary of state who was reported defeated on the unofficial count which gave the Democratic nomination to Charles De Sales Wheeler. The Pinal county figures for secretary of state gave a surprisingly large vote for Mrs. Haywood, who secured 381 votes, being second

GET FOUR STILLS IN COUNTRY RAID

In a raid 40 miles south of Mesa, on the old Kearney mining property, in Pinal county, yesterday officers found four stills and 60 gallons of mash, but the "moonshiners" had left before they reached the location. Two of the stills were a 40 and a 60-gallon, had been set up and had evidence of having been under operation for several months. The other two, each of 10-gallon capacity, were not set up.

The raid was conducted by Sheriff Prohibition Agent Broshers, Deputy Sheriff Anderson and Wooten of Florence, Deputy Sheriff Pickens of Mesa and Deputy Sheriff Jim Troutman and Billy Westcott of Phoenix.

The stills were set up on a ledge on the side of the mountain and wood was used for fuel. About 75 empty syrup cans were lying near by. A dugout furnished shelter for the men and their effects. The mash was made from cornmeal and syrup. The officers estimated that the quantity of whiskey had been made with the stills.

AMUSEMENTS ORIENTAL NIGHT AT FOREST PARK

The Orient holds a charm for everyone, and guests at Toft's country club this evening will find that their favorite resort has been orientalized to the last degree.

The evening night has been long anticipated, and the management has arranged to make dancing particularly enticing, affording many lucky spot dances. And of course, decorations will be profuse and in accordance with the unique occasion.

Free admission is a special feature Saturday and Sunday nights, and those who do not have must remember that they are equally welcome, and that equal thought has been given to their entertainment.

American.
"Knocked 'em dead from east to west." Just that has been said about Donald Parker, one of the many reasons why the American dancer is now rightly becoming a more popular rendezvous for pleasure seekers. That he can play "low-down blues" to please the most exacting of critics is truly emphasized by his success on the coast in such resorts as the Vernon country club, Blue Bird cafe, Sunset Inn and the Ship cafe. Donald Parker's personality is equal to his rare saxophone ability, a combination which simply can't be beat, and is assuring him lasting success this season.

"Scandals of 1919" at Elks.
George White's "Scandals of 1919" appear at the Elks theater this afternoon and tonight for the last times. The mammoth musical revue is the first of its kind to be produced here, having opened a new era for the musical shows in the United States with its original method and material. Its thoroughly distinctive features, its smart wit, keen satire and unique portrayal of events. That this production scored one of the most sensational hits of a decade in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago is proven beyond a doubt by the indisputable evidence furnished by box office receipts in each of the respective cities, where records were smashed by the super-capacity business done nightly by the "Scandals."

In selecting the material for the "Scandals of 1919" George White, the originator of the revue and co-author of the book and lyrics, did not depend on the plays of current interest in the theater as is usually done, but chose to make fun of present-day conditions in the work-a-day world. For instance, he has traveled the overcrowded condition of hotels, justice as it is meted out to beautiful lady murderers on Long Island, the H. C. L. and of course the all-absorbing topic of prohibition. All of these are treated in a manner wholly humorous. It is one of those melanges of song, dance and travesty so popular with the playgoers of every sort.

Shining honors with George White as author of the book and lyrics is Arthur Jackson, while three composers who have been heard before in the musical score, Richard Whiting, Herbert Spencer and Al Gumble.

Riverside Park.
Tonight will doubtless be the biggest night of the season at Riverside park, for it will see the monster masquerade staged, the event that brings the widest array of the summer season at the popular amusement center.

The masquerade has attracted widespread attention, first for the reason that it is the last feature with the exception of the carnival night tomorrow night, which is the last night of Riverside's most successful year, and from the fact that the prizes aggregate $50 in cash, divided three ways, $25 first, $15 second and $10 third.

The rules of the contest make it imperative that all contestants appear in complete costume. There is no entrance fee, no one is barred, but on the contrary every one in the city and county are invited to join in the contest, which will mean the bringing out of the best variety of costume and event has ever uncovered in Phoenix.

The Red Bird.
Carroll Reed and his jazz band, now playing the season at the Red Bird, are the talk of the dancing public of Phoenix, for they have demonstrated that they know real dance music. The crowd which nightly throngs this popular dancing place are loud in their praise of Reed and his band, all voting it one of the finest aggregations that ever played Phoenix.

E. S. Mayfield as floor manager and instructor is another asset to the Red Bird. Mayfield, well known throughout Arizona as one of the most efficient instructors in the art of dancing, conducts his classes each day and during the early hours of the evening. The regrestment service of the Red Bird will remain as a permanent feature, and this, coupled with the excellence of the music, the excellence of the floor, the excellence of appointments and conveniences, make the Red Bird an ideal place for dancing. The establishment features five cent dances.

Ramona.
Vivian Rich in "Would You Forgive" is the Ramona's offering for the last time today. A splendid story of social conditions as regards many of the homes of the wealthy is the theme of the production, which seeks the question, Why is the double standard of morality?

It reveals the life tragedy of a married couple, the man jealous of the innocent wife because he imagines she is still in love with a former sweetheart, and the wife fully aware of an affair in which the husband is involved with another woman, each struggling to keep up the sham of marriage until the final climax comes. The twist the author has given to the story places it in the class of the really emotional stories of the most intense order.

Tomorrow brings Tom Mix in "The Heart of Texas Ryan."

The Hip.
Elsie Ferguson brings her engagement at the Hip to a close with the last showings today of "Heart of the Wilds."

Elsie Ferguson, known far and wide as the most beautiful woman on the screen, has during her career in pictures established some of the most outstanding successes of the industry. She is possessed of a rare personality, a wonderful manner, and a charm of appeal that, coupled with her glorious beauty, makes of her the ideal type for pictures. "Heart of the Wilds" is a story that finds her cast in a role that is replete with opportunity for display of versatility, and that she takes advantage of them all goes without saying, for "Heart of the Wilds" is considered among her best pictures.

"The Lone Ranger" is the added western story.

Strand.
Marguerite Clark finishes her engagement at the Strand with the final showings today of "Easy to Get."

This charming girl is seen to excellent advantage in this refreshing comedy romance of love and youth, and scores heavily as the young bride who sets out to teach her husband the error of his ways, for a remark made on his honeymoon, that "women are easy to get if you use the right system," gives the bride the inspiration to teach hubby a lesson. But it is a scheme that is put into execution on the stage, and with consideration for consequences, and with the final denouement both hubby and wife are taught a real lesson. It is a Paramount-Artcraft comedy, full of refreshing humor, and will even more firmly implant the little "four feet of loveliness" in the hearts of her legion of friends.

"Should Waiters Marry" is the comedy, while the Fox News balances the program. Tomorrow begins the engagement of "Humoresque." "The greatest human story ever told."

Columbia.
The noted actor of the legitimate stage, William Faversham, will be seen for the last times today at the Columbia in his greatest screen vehicle, "The Man Who Lost Himself." The plot of the story revolves around a stranded American in London who is suddenly projected into the character of a British court. The scenes and situations of this play are replete with action, suspense and gripping interest and its stellar role is ably interpreted in William Faversham's inimitable characterization.

Helpful hints to girls and boys, anxious to ascertain whether one certain member of the opposite sex is responsive to their respective emotions will be given in the "Love Expert," starring Constance Talmadge at the Columbia, beginning tomorrow. As "Elks" a romantic boarding school girl, Connie is in her most delightful characterization. Eschewing the cut-and-dried educational subjects, she devotes herself to self instruction in the science of practical love-making with the result that the board of regents stimulates another sale for the railroad company, thus enabling Babs to out her many formulas of sentiment. The management maintains that nothing to equal it has ever been shown here before.

One of the features of tomorrow's program at the Columbia will be a cello solo by J. J. Sewell of the Columbia orchestra. The Sunday matinees will have all of the features of the evening performances, including the full orchestral accompaniments with Fred Barlow directing.
